

IS 104: Career/Life Exploration and Planning

This is a survey course offering preparation for initial career exploration and planning. Emphasis is on career decision-making, assessment of self-information, world of work information, self-assessed interests, values, and a survey of occupational clusters and related academic preparation. Upon completion of this course students will have developed a basic career action plan comprised of a career goal statement and short-term and long-term career and educational objectives.

Credits: 1